

Jaylon Musa is an artist hailing from Lake Charles, Louisiana and currently based in Los Angeles, California. He started his musical journey by singing in several choirs as a child, as he got older he was later so inspired by 90's East Coast Hip Hop acts such as Nas, Jay-z and DMX that in his 20's , he decided to get on the mic and perform his own innovative and introspective material for enthusiastic audiences in Dallas, New Orleans and Houston.

Jaylon relocated to Los Angeles to further his musical career and entertain audiences across the West Coast with a distinct flow that is mellow, charismatic and inspiring. While being in LA, he dropped an EP titled "The Birth" which symbolizes the beginning of his career, and during that same year he was also awarded the 2018 BET Freestyle Friday Champion of Los Angeles.

Jaylon has gotten the opportunity to open up for people like Dreamville's Omen and Skyzoo. He has recently released his album Almighty that touch on topics in the black community and uplifting one another, something Jaylon is very passionate about. He continues to push this album as it tells many stories and delivers many messages.